

Second Half of Big Burley Loan is Paid

Checks for the second half of the loan of $5,600,000 made by bankers of the burley district to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association February 1 were mailed to the lenders Wednesday by Secretary H. L. Early, of the association, the first half of the loan, which was originally negotiated for 90 days, having been paid off about 10 days ago.

Mr. Early said the finances of the association, due to the sales of the association's holdings at good prices, were in such condition as to permit the paying off of this loan and that the remarkable success of the association in the short time it has been in business made it possible for it to settle its obligation before their maturity.

Chairman of the Finance Committee Charles N. Manning said that bankers of the burley district were entitled to credit for what they had done in evidencing their confidence in the new system of marketing.

"The loyalty of the bankers has been one of the most pleasing features of the co-operative marketing of burley tobacco so far," said Mr. Manning, "and they deserve the gratitude of the organized growers for the confidence they have manifested in the new system, which has been the means of enlisting the confidence of business men generally, as well as of the growers who so often depend on their bankers for advice."

President and General Manager J. C. Stone of the association, discussing the re-payment of the loan, remarked:

"It is very gratifying to all of us, who joined the association, that it is able to make an excellent showing financially within so short a time and we are deeply grateful to the bankers and business element generally, who saw at the very start the importance of the co-operative marketing of tobacco to every business interest in the district and made it possible for us to go ahead with our work with the certainty that the crop of 1921, would be financed properly and amply."

"The growers have stood by the association through thick and thin, who have waited patiently for their money and who have backed up their officials in what has been done so far for their interests, also deserve and have our gratitude."

"That we have made a splendid start in co-operative marketing of burley tobacco is not to be disputed. If we stand together in future as we have for the past two months and I haven't a doubt that we shall, the continued success of the association is assured."

The receipt of a number of additional contracts, signed by growers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, who did not join the association last fall, was announced at the offices of Chief of the Field Service Division Joseph Pasonneau at Lexington. The number of acres signed was not announced, as the figures had not been tabulated.

MRS. ROE DEAD

Mrs. Bettie Roe died at her home in Shelbyville Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock after a brief illness. She was born at Sharpsburg, Bath county, June 10, 1841, and was the widow of Dr. E. R. Roe, who preceded her to the grave by many years. Two children, Waller Roe and Mrs. E. W. Young, who reside in Shelbyville, survive her. Mrs. Roe was the aunt of Mrs. Bruce Trimble, of this city, whom she had frequently visited, and had many warm friends here who will read of her death with much regret. Funeral services will be held at the home of her daughter this afternoon, conducted by Rev. Bruce W. Trimble, of this city. Mrs. Roe was the last of a large family.

City Council in Regular Session

The city council met in regular session at the city hall Tuesday night, presided over by Mayor W. R. McKee, with seven members of the council in attendance.

Ordinances were passed fixing the amount of the occupation tax on ice cream vendors and the broom factory.

Building permits were granted to Jesse Hainline and to V. K. Williams to build residences and a number of permits were referred to the improvement committee.

John G. Roberts offered to the city three feet of ground running along the side of his property, thus widening Bank street to this extent. In exchange for this the city is to build a sidewalk and retaining wall adjoining Mr. Roberts' property. The council, it is understood, will accept Mr. Roberts' offer, as the widening of Bank street will be a great improvement to this section of the city.

Childers, who will open a first-class grocery and meat store. The two pieces of resident property will be improved and rented by the new owner. The property purchased was well worth the money.

Enthusiasm and Optimism the Dominant Note In Hundred Per Cent Meeting of Team Captains

Leaders Choose Picked List of Community's Boosters For Teams

Campaign headquarters of the new hotel witnessed a splendid and enthusiastic meeting of the team captains when they met Wednesday night with their division chairmen and John A. Judy and J. O. Greene, chairmen of the Citizens' Committee and Executive Committee, respectively.

During the meeting it was manifested very plainly that Mt. Sterling is going to have her new and modern hotel through the efforts of her citizen boosters. The main object of the meeting was fulfilled to the limit of the desires of the campaign directors as the captains were there to select names of prospective team workers upon whom no little responsibility will rest, for in a large measure it will be through the efforts of the team workers that Mt. Sterling will have her greatest need realized.

These men are chosen because of their loyalty, their progressive spirit and their ability to sell the new hotel project, and as each team captain will have nine of these additional teammates the completed personnel will present one of the finest working bodies that has ever participated in any Mt. Sterling enterprise.

The completed organization will be called together on Friday night, March 17, to receive full instructions. A special feature of this meeting will be a sales demonstration at which three of Mt. Sterling's best salesmen will illustrate how stock in the new hotel is sold.

The campaign organization to date includes the Executive Committee as previously reported and the following:

DIVISION CHAIRMEN

Division "A"—R. G. Kern.
Division "B"—O. W. McCormick.
Division "C"—Lee Orear.

TEAM CAPTAINS

Division A, No. 1—T. B. Hill.
Division A, No. 2—C. K. Oldham.
Division A, No. 3—B. F. Perry.
Division B, No. 4—Robert Collier.
Division B, No. 5—R. T. Judy.
Division B, No. 6—Hunt Priest.
Division C, No. 7—M. O. Cockrill and Joe Keller, Associate Captains.
Division C, No. 8—A. B. Oldham.
Division C, No. 9—C. C. Chenault, Jr.

The captains will secure the needed number of workers at once and every man left the meeting determined that he would be the first man to report a full quota of team workers signed up. The teams will be published in full in the order in which they are turned in to the campaign office.

DIXIE CARPET CLEANING CO.

This is another new business for Mt. Sterling, the needs of which are great. In Mt. Sterling and the county outside the city as well there are many fine carpets and rugs that must be cleaned. The old way scatters disease and ruins the carpets, while the new process renews the fabrics, brightens the colors and extinguishes all germs. The prices charged for this new process work are very reasonable, within the reach of all. The Dixie Carpet Cleaning Co. has installed this machinery at a considerable cost, but the company would have nothing but the most modern, just such machinery as is employed in the best plants in Cincinnati, Louisville and other large cities. All persons wishing rugs and carpets cleaned should arrange for this cleanery as early as possible. Address the Dixie Carpet Cleaning Co., Mt. Sterling, Ky.

Tax Reduction Bill Up to the Governor

The Thompson tax bill as amended by the senate was yesterday passed by the house by a vote of 66 to 16, after the amendment had been concurred in by a vote of 63 to 19. It passed the senate Tuesday, 21 to 16.

Representative C. D. Minor, of Boyle county, was in the chair, and Speaker Thompson, who sat at the clerk's desk, explained the amendments, of which the principal ones are to raise all real estate from 30 cents to 35 cents on $100, making it 5 cents less than at present, and the division of the 30-cent local tax on intangibles for local purposes, allowing counties to levy 15 cents and towns 15 cents on each $100. The bill now goes to the governor for his approval.

FORMER PARIS GIRL TO MARRY IN APRIL

News has been received by friends and relatives throughout the state of the approaching marriage of Miss Elizabeth Yerkes, Glendale, Cal., to Walter A. Grayson, of Los Angeles, Cal., the wedding to take place on April 6 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. L. Yerkes.

Miss Yerkes was born and raised in Paris, being the youngest daughter of the late Prof. W. L. Yerkes, one of the best known educators in the state. Because of the failing health of Mrs. Yerkes, she and her daughter moved to California several years ago, where they have resided since.

Miss Yerkes will be remembered as a young girl of unusual beauty and charm, inheriting those gifts of her parents which would win for her a place in the social life of any circle.

Mr. Grayson holds a responsible position with the chamber of commerce of Los Angeles and is a young man of sterling worth and business ability.

The wedding will be a social event of April.

Miss Yerkes is a niece of the late John T. Woodford, of this city, and has frequently visited in Mt. Sterling, where she is very popular.

Converted Mormon To Preach Here

Oakley R. Miller will speak in the Baptist Church, on Monday evening, March 13, at 7:30 o'clock. His subject will be "The Truth About Mormonism." He knows all about it, and those who have heard him say that he tells all about it as completely as any one can in the same length of time.

Mr. Miller was an elder in the Mormon church. Becoming convinced of its fraudulent claims he left the church and studied for the ministry and is now a preacher of the Baptist faith. He held the pastorate of the Immanuel Baptist church, Dorchester district, Boston, Massachusetts, for three years ending in July 1921. Because of his fearlessness in exposing the blasphemies and disloyalties of the Mormons, Mr. Miller has been pursued by the most bitter enmity which this intriguing sect can devise; but he continues his work under the auspices of the National Reform Association, speaking before large congregations everywhere and winning general commendation of the spirit of his work and of his motive in performing his necessary labor.

The National Reform Association is now the accepted leader of the cause against the criminal aggressions of the Mormon hierarchy. It is advocating an anti-polygamy amendment resolution which is now pending before the national Congress. The Association has conducted three World Christian Citizenship Conferences in which its exposure of Mormonism has been complete. It maintains a world commission on Mormonism and is to have report from such commission at the Fourth World Christian Citizenship Conference to be held under the direction of the National Reform Association at Winona Lake, Indiana, in 1923. Rev. James S. Martin, one of the great executives of the United States, is general superintendent of the Association and the immediate Christian Statesman, which has had a phenomenal growth in recent years. While other publications were complaining that their circulation was falling off, that of the Christian Statesman in two years, has more than doubled.

The Rev. Oakley R. Miller is making a tour of this country and good reports from previous meetings, herald his coming here. No one who is interested in this vital subject can afford to miss this address.

Death Claims Mr. Henry W. Senieur

Wednesday, a few moments after the sun had passed the meridian heights, Henry W. Senieur laid aside all of mortal and entered on that eternity that comes to all.

He was a son of Fred and Annie Levi Senieur and was approaching his 59th year. His sickness was through a period of eight weeks and death came from heart failure, superinduced by bronchial asthma.

Funeral services will be held at his late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Revs. Clyde Darsie and B. W. Trimble, and following, the body will be buried in Machpelah cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, three brothers, William, of Cincinnati, O.; Charles, of Charleston, W. Va., and Bert, of Mt. Sterling, and three sisters, Mrs. J. M. Jenkins, of Winchester; Mrs. J. Will McCormick and Mrs. J. S. Rogers, of Deland, Fla., all of whom are here to pay sad rites to him whom they loved.

In early life Henry Senieur began Bible study in order to become a preacher of the Word and did deliver a few sermons, but in this he was sidetracked in some way and turned his attention to the trade of his father, that of manufacturing buggies and, barring the time he gave as a commercial traveler, his life has been spent in Mt. Sterling. About 30 years ago he was married to Miss Ovie Russell, of Hustonville and to them were born three children, all of whom died in infancy.

In strong young manhood Henry W. Senieur passes from earth to his reward. He was a good citizen, an affectionate husband, a man who loved home and home companionship. Our dealings with him have been many and in every instance he was just and correct. Since his departure we have heard many expressions and they were all alike, he was a just man.

His business was that of a manufacturer and dealer in high class buggies and his passing leaves a vacancy in business circles that cannot be filled easily. His wife and kindred have the sympathy of all of our good people. Loyal to his church, faithful to his family, at the zenith of his usefulness, Henry W. Senieur leaves the imprint of a good citizen and useful man.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR. TELLS HOW TO USE MONEY

That wealth brings great responsibility was the burden of an address John D. Rockefeller, Jr., made recently before a Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York. It was the first appearance of Mr. Rockefeller since his return from China before his class, which he formed 25 years ago and of which he is still honorary president.

Rockefeller's topic was "A Man's Ideals," and in his "sermon" he said:

"Wealth honestly acquired is a great possession because it enables one to render great service, but remember that wealth brings great responsibilities."

I have many men come into my office and tell me all the great things they would do if they had $100,000. Well, the way a man uses money he has is an indication of how he would use it if he had more. I can sit down and in five minutes show a man how much harm he can do with $500,000. Enterprises are frequently weakened by the unwise giving of money.

"Money has value only as it is converted into useful service. When my father was paying $1 a week for lodging he gave 5 cents a week to the poor. The one employer he had used to say of him, 'Rockefeller was the best clerk and bookkeeper I ever had; I knew if he had signed a voucher that the goods had been delivered.'"

"Success consists of doing the common things of life uncommonly well. Men, do not task that is presented to you just as well as it can be done. A man climbs a ladder only one rung at a time. Only as that duty is faithfully performed he is ready for the next step higher. 'The only real justification of power is service. I can think of no man so unhappy as that man who is only seeking pleasure. Pleasure is like the sugar icing on a cake. If you sit down to a meal that is made up altogether of frosted cake the pleasure is all gone. Education, wealth, power, and pleasure are like two-edged swords. If rightly used they bring great happiness to the world. If wrongly used they bring great misery.'"

MELODY ANN

By FRANCES E. GOODRICH.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Melody Ann sat on the back step, looking across the mist-filled valley. As usual she was singing, otherwise she would not have been Melody Ann.

"When Melody Ann takes them high notes it makes shivers go right up your backbone," said Deacon Brown, and the other villagers agreed with him.

"Too bad Melody Ann is so odd," they said. "If she'd only dress herself up a bit and not look so gawky she might get a fellow as well as the other girls; but, land's sake, all she thinks of is getting off by herself somewhere and singing."

She was odd. When the other young people were enjoying themselves with lively country amusements, Melody Ann was roaming through the woods or by the sea, singing in her high, untrained voice.

The mist slowly dissolved itself in pink, glistening dawn, and Melody Ann caught her breath for a moment with the beauty and mystery of it. Then, like a bird carolling the new day, her voice rose sweet and piercing in a hymn of praise.

She did not hear the automobile that stopped by the gate, nor see the heavily-built, black-bearded man who left the car and walked toward the back of the house, so she was much startled when a gruff voice said "Great! Do that over again, girl."

Jumping up, she looked into black eyes that shone with eagerness. She stood looking at the stranger in astonishment, when his impatient command again broke his silence. "But—but—I don't know what I was singing," stammered Melody Ann. "I just sing that way most all the time."

"Well, you can sing the scale, can't you?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, sir. We are taught to sing that way in school," and, always glad to oblige when she could, she sang the scale. Then an octave higher, then still higher, but the man raised his hand. "That will do. Where are your parents? I want to see them."

"My father and mother are dead and I live with grandmother. Won't you come in?" and she led the way into the little kitchen, where the table was laid for breakfast. Mrs. Carwin appeared and with simple hospitality made a place for the stranger at the table.

With shy amazement Melody Ann heard him tell her grandmother that her voice was a remarkable one. It was his business to find and train just such voices as Melody Ann's.

Mrs. Carwin listened eagerly; then with tears in her eyes slowly shook her head. "I know her voice is different from most, but we haven't any money for to have it trained now. Perhaps as soon as she gets to work herself she can earn a little and take lessons."

But the man shook his head impatiently. "Poof, we cannot wait until she can earn the money. The time to start this training is now, and the money will be provided. In New York there is a man of great wealth who gives liberally to train such girls as your granddaughter."

That evening the little house overlooking the valley was closed and Mrs. Carwin and Melody Ann went away in the big car to a new life.

Then began work such as Melody Ann had never dreamed of. There were many nights when she crept into bed, wishing with all her heart she was back in the little house on the hill, singing just as she liked.

For some time a thought had troubled Melody Ann. It seemed so ungrateful not to see her benefactor and thank him, even if he would have to wait a long time until she could repay him. She broached the subject to the teacher, but he discouraged it. "Wait until your first public appearance, and then you shall meet him," he said.

At last the day, the hour, the moment, and Melody Ann, in a simple frock of white, stood alone before that swaying sea of faces. A strange faintness held her for an instant, then the orchestra began the familiar air, the faces faded and before her lay the mist-filled valley, and she was welcoming the dawn.

The music stopped and her eyes saw the lights again and the faces, and she felt the tense silence. Then applause rolled like thunder through the great hall. She saw her teacher, rather white faced, but smiling, and grandmother, nodding happily with tears rolling down her cheeks.

At last the crowd was gone and Melody Ann stood face to face with the man who had made her success possible.

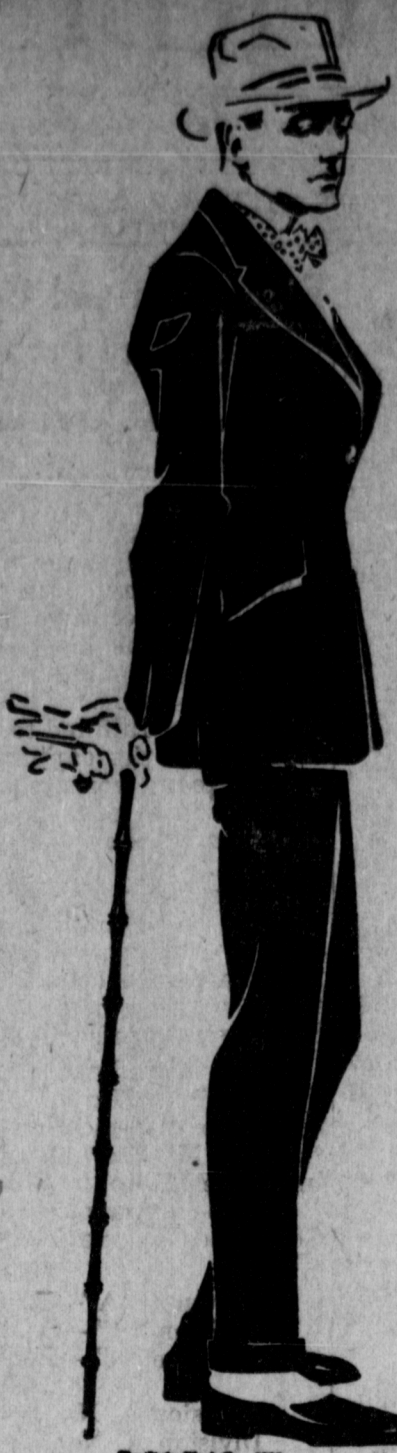

A year later Melody Ann sat on the back step waiting for the first pink flush to waken the gray mist to life, but she was not alone. A strong hand held her own tenderly, and Melody Ann looked into her husband's eyes with a great love shining in her own.

"We will help many other girls just as you helped me, won't we?" she murmured, and got her answer with his lips against her own.

The pink swiftly spread over the gray and Melody Ann's voice rang joyously down the valley.

SIX BILLIONS LOST

Bucket shops and financial swindlers have within the last four years defrauded the investors of America to the extent of more than $6,000,000,000, according to the New York correspondent of the Washington Post Investigation by the Post's correspondent develops the fact that an amount in excess of $750,000,000 was extracted from green investors by sharpers during 1921. If these figures are to be accepted as anywhere near accurate, it means a per capita loss for every man, woman and child in the United States of about $7 for the year. "Bucket shop" operations are blamer for much of this.

A campaign is being launched by an organization of legitimate bankers and brokers, backed by the New York Stock Exchange, the American Bankers' Association and the New York Bankers' Association to blot out this cancer in the financial system of the country.

The method of operation of the bucket shop is varied and interesting. The story of their activities as told by a financial report expert disclosed adventures with other people's money as romantic as fiction. He said:

"A bucket shop is a financial house which conducts a fictitious business in securities. Stocks or bonds are seldom purchased on order from clients. Partners in these firms try to outguess the public on the movement of the market, and usually do. For this reason, when a client places an order the fake broker merely makes a bookkeeping entry to that effect. When the entry shows the customer's money has been lost, according to market quotations, the client is notified to put up more for margin or be wiped out."

A bucket shop is seldom connected with the stock exchange. To buy stocks listed in the exchange, the bucketeer has to give an order to an exchange member. This means that he sacrifices all commissions on the deal. Therefore, as an inducement to the public, a bucket shop usually informs clients it does not charge more than six per cent on debit balances growing out of marginal purchases, no matter how high the call money rate goes. They are able to do this because the customer has never held any stock or had a debit balance.

"One good indication that a brokerage firm is a bucket shop is the refusal of the stock exchange to grant a permit for a stock ticker. When a brokerage firm wants stock tickers, application must be made to the quotation committee of the exchange. If they show a clean bill of financial health and are considered above suspicion they are granted permission to use a ticker. Otherwise they are refused, and refusal generally means that something is wrong somewhere."

"Where a house is granted a ticker and the exchange later learns business is not being conducted on the level, the machine is wiped out without delay."

"Bucket shops have a policy of buying about one-third of the securities ordered by customers. This is done for protection in case of an unexpected visit by the authorities. In case securities they are supposed to be holding for clients are demanded, they can, in this way, show part of them and claim the remainder have been placed as collateral on loans."

THE WIND

The wind's activities hold a small child's attention—the clouds, the flying flag, windmills and pinwheels, clothes swaying on the line, blowing of children's hair and the tails of the fowls, the swaying trees and grass, while the weathervane, "Turning, pointing, ever showing How the merry wind is blowing," asks repeatedly, "Where? How?"

There are a number of verses easily memorized which will make the wind seem a friendly element. "Who hath seen the wind? Neither you nor I, But when the trees bow down their heads The wind is passing by."

When the child learns what the different winds bring, he is being awakened to a finer appreciation of a force that can be so gentle and yet so mighty.

Was there ever a child that did not ask, "Where does the wind come from?" It is part of the high office of parenthood to deepen a child's inherent sense of reverence before the elements, to prevent if possible its deterioration into empty wonder or morbid fear. It is well to cultivate the feeling of awe, teaching the careless child that the piling up of thunder clouds and the bowing of wind-swept trees are to be appreciated, by this same appreciation leading the timid one out of his fear.

The wind signifies the spirit. No mother who desires a well-rounded development for her child will fail to recognize his need of inner strength, his misconceptions that need straightening. While the kingdom of heaven is the inheritance of child-like hearts, children have need of guidance, and they guide us, too, when we are clear-sighted enough to respond, but our emphasis upon values which are unseen helps to raise our children's standards.

"Only God can bring up a child. Nothing will bridge the abyss of the actual and the ideal except faith, hope, love, work and the immediate help of Divinity."—Alice Wingate Frary.

American Legion News

Adjusted compensation won a decided victory in the nation-wide referendum conducted by the United States Chamber of Commerce—4,116 chambers voting favorably and 2,657 voting against the measure. "From the U. S. Chamber's point of view," said John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee, "the referendum was a flat failure, for that body represents the most highly organized opposition to the bonus. By trying to separate the cash feature from the more productive provisions of the bill, and by other means, it has done everything in its power to influence its constituent members against the bill. In spite of this fact, the vote shows almost two to one favorable. The legion despises unfair discrimination—cash and the other features cannot be separated as the U. S. Chamber separated them in its referendum."

On March 4, American Legion membership was 108,000 more than on March 4, 1921. New members have joined at the rate of 6,600 a day since January 1. These figures have been given out from legion headquarters to refute the statement that the organization is losing members because of its stand on adjusted compensation.

The American Legion has won the first suit in its history, brought to defend its name. Judgment by default and damages were awarded the legion against Francis H. Shoemaker, alleged radical worker, for the statements made in a speech last December. Shoemaker was quoted as saying that the legion is "subsidizing by big interests" and "opposed to organized labor."

Before sunset of the first day, 500,000 daisies were sold in the American Legion's "Daisy Day" drive throughout Massachusetts for funds to help unemployed ex-soldiers. Four daisies brought $125.

Charging that the bonus is attacked "not by those who fought" but "by those who profited," the American Legion at Marion, Ohio, home of President Harding, has appealed to congress to look at the facts "in the light of pure reason."

"It will be blown up!" The police at Centralia, Wash., received this threat against the erection of the American Legion memorial building, to be dedicated to men shot down by alleged I. W. W. members in 1919.

To attend an American Legion initiation, an Oregon rancher trekked 35 miles—18 of them on snowshoes. Wounds received in France did not check his determination to "arrive."

A member of the American Legion or its Auxiliary will sit on every school board in Iowa if plans of the legion's Americanism department in that state carry.

Cash payments ran fourth in a referendum on adjusted compensation taken by the Elgin, Neb., post of the American Legion in five townships. At Bozeman, Mont., there were no votes for the cash option.

Repudiating the stand against adjusted compensation taken by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago commerce board went on record in support of the bill, following a visit to Chicago of Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion.

The ex-service man on the beach at Waikiki needs a bonus as much as his buddy in this country, according to the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, which has passed a resolution endorsing the American Legion's five-fold adjusted compensation bill.

Making expenses by selling chewing gum, an ex-cavalryman is walking from Chicago to Los Angeles to get a job promised him there. "It's 1,500 miles, but jobs are scarce," he says.

The longest wireless jump ever made at sea was recorded when the steamer American Legion, entering Buenos Aires, picked up a message from a ship off Honolulu, 7,000 miles distant.

"How a man worships his God is his own business," wrote Hanford MacNider, legion commander, answering a magazine article entitled "Rome Heads the American Legion." Mr. MacNider said religion is of no consideration in legion membership.

Armed with fence pickets doughty ex-soldiers staged a bloodless bullfight in the Jersey City stockyards to raise funds for the American Legion. The nimble matadors had to jump the fence on several occasions.

Disabled emergency officers of the world war would be retired on an equal basis with regular army officers by the terms of the Bursum bill, sponsored by the American Legion. The bill has already passed the senate.

Arrested for a minor offense, Gordon Seybold, Oneida, N. Y., ex-service man, says state troopers swung him up by his wrists and pummeled him to get a confession. The American Legion has engaged counsel to probe the charge.

POLITICAL CASTING

At this time the good people of the commonwealth, those who bear the basal burdens of the state are beginning to cast a searching eye over an informed population, with the view of selecting a man as candidate for governor of Kentucky, who is in line with the interests of the people, one who is not only up on theories, but one who has the experimental knowledge, who knows the roads to relief and who has the nerve to stand for them. To our mind this man should come from the farm with an ambition to serve only the great common people. We have just such men. Whom will the Democrats select? Already the politician is forming his combine and he is in that legislative group at Frankfort, that partisan few, interested only in downing the other fellow. The Democratic party should be wise. They should find a man who stands for something higher than just to oppose because the other fellow is for it.

That most talked of now and which a local citizenship is most interested in is the new hotel. The plans by which the money is to be raised are being perfected so that all persons with a civic pride can participate. We feel that every citizen is interested who realizes the needs. Every piece of property in Montgomery county becomes the more valuable as soon as a modern hotel has been opened to the public. We cannot begin to estimate the additional circulative medium by reason of additional consumption. We feel that we must have a part in this laudable enterprise, that we must pay for some of the brick that go to make the structure that our children may refer to us as men of public enterprise, who had stock in the structure that has given impetus to a live city, a new Mt. Sterling.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

Some people think, and some people read, and some people think they read when they just meander over the garden arm in arm with great men and never pluck a flower. We'd listen with ears wide open if we could have a talk with Napoleon, but we don't listen when we meet him in a book and have all the time in the world to think about what he said and did. We are trying to find out what brings success and what results in failure, and the lesson is right under our noses. If we really read we can soon learn what characteristics brought greatness to men and what turned others into bubbles that floated up to popularity and then blew up. Seems as if there's something in meeting dead ones as well as live ones.

DESCRIBING THE SALES TAX

H. C. McKenzie, taxation expert for the American Farm Bureau Federation, makes some interesting comparisons in swinging his axe at the roots of the proposed sales tax. Referring to President Harding's recent urging of the necessity of an equitable division among the people of the national income, Mr. McKenzie feels this is not more vital than the use to which the money is put after it is equitably divided. He calls attention to the fact that the income tax group of the American people is really a small proportion of the population, indeed that when it is eliminated there remain about 90,000,000 people with an average income of $330 a year. Considering the other side of the ledger, the federal budget for 1922 will amount to about $4,000,000,000 or about $40 per capita. Adding state and other taxes, Mr. McKenzie figures an aggregate per capita of $70 or $350 for the average American family—a little more as a fact than the average income. The figures offer a striking lesson to the advocates of a sales tax, according to the expert. If the revenue were raised by consumption taxes, he says the small income tax group would get off with an insignificant payment of taxes in proportion to their income, which is their share of the national wealth. The savings would escape taxation entirely. Men of great wealth spend only an insignificant part of their income on living expenses. The result would be that the poor would pay the piper while the rich danced to the music. The danger in such a system, if this analysis be accurate, lies deeper than the financial mulling of the poor. Behind systems of exploiting lurks the danger of revolt. They are the seeds of discontent, the rocks on which nations have been wrecked.

Treasury Department, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, February 28, 1922.

Whereas, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that the Montgomery National Bank of Mt. Sterling, in the city of Mt. Sterling, in the county of Montgomery, and state of Kentucky, has complied with all the provisions of the Act of Congress "to enable National Banking Associations to extend their corporate existence and for other purposes," approved July 12, 1882;

Now, therefore, I, D. R. Crissinger, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that the Montgomery National Bank of Mt. Sterling, in the city of Mt. Sterling, in the county of Montgomery, and state of Kentucky, is authorized to have succession for the period specified in its amended articles of association; namely, until close of business on February 28, 1942.

In testimony whereof, witness my hand and seal of office, this twenty-eighth day of February, 1922.

Comptroller of the Currency.
Charter No. 6160. Extension No. 4199. (41-8t)

COWS AND CONGRESSMEN

If the department of agriculture would only find a more effective way of spreading its information to the farmer its research work would more than warrant the national expenditure. Unfortunately the department depends on archaic methods of contact and so much of the information gathered never reaches the spot it is meant for. For example, how many farmers know the results of recent experiments in connection with cows? They have learned after many years what could have been told in a few months, that pure breeds are more profitable than scrub stock. Now it appears to be clearly demonstrated that within the breeds are grades the farmer will do well to take into consideration, when he learns the fact.

Evidence shows that on the average the large cow is of more value than the small one, though this does not always hold true in some herds of native cattle. The department cites one test in which were classified 160 small cows, 201 medium and 129 large. The small cows averaged 243 pounds of butter fat a year, making an income of 77.39 over the cost of feed. The medium sized cow made 289 pounds of butter fat and an income over feed of 88.91, while the large cows produced 345 pounds of butter fat and an income in excess of feed, amounting to 105.74. The results of the experiment seem to run true to form. Whether it be cows or congressmen, the pure breed and the good well rounded specimen invariably spell the best results. The scrubs and pee wee minds should be weeded out of legislative as well as agricultural life.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CHILD EDUCATION

There is no question in the minds of intelligent persons regarding the deep significance of education during the first six years of life. To be fully appreciated, however, this period must be considered in the light of its relation to the sum total of all education.

In the first place, as life is a continuous process, so education should be a continuous guiding of life to its highest fulfillment.

The various stages of life—in infancy, childhood, youth and manhood, should merge naturally into one another.

The goal of the entire process of education is good character, realized through the acquisition of good habits, and it may readily be seen that this fact should be kept in mind by every educator of the infant, child or youth. The educator must also bear in mind the fact that the foundation of education is laid in infancy and childhood.

Physiologists and psychologists agree that many of the physical weaknesses and harmful mental habits of late years may be traced to family guidance in childhood.

During childhood a fund of resistance, physical and mental, should be acquired through observance of the laws governing development. In order, however, that these laws be observed in the nursery, they must be understood by the parent, and that they be understood, they must be as systematically taught as other subjects of education.

An educator recently made the following statement: "My brother and his wife are both university graduates. When the first baby came to their home, neither of them knew anything about the care of it, physically or mentally." The speaker went on to say: "It is incredible that students should be permitted to graduate from our higher institutions of learning without any knowledge of one of the most important subjects of education—the care of the child."

Observation of young mothers at their task reveals the fact that many of them do not realize that their work calls for especial preparation, and frequently the crowning joy of parenthood, true satisfaction, is missed. But sadder still is the fate of the small pupil, who, commencing life with an impulse to realize his inborn possibilities, is handicapped not only by his own shortsightedness but also by the faulty guidance of one who loves him, but does not understand him; one who cannot discriminate between the natural impulses that should be cherished and strengthened, and those that should be eliminated.

Until the fact is recognized that the first six years of life comprise the most important period of education, a heavy handicap will continue to be placed upon the efforts of the pupil both in the home and in the school.

Every high school, college and university should offer a thorough course in child education, physical and mental, and this study should be second to none on the required list of subjects for graduation. In this way parents could be prepared for their especial work as educators, and the child permitted to realize his innate possibilities.—Ellen Creelman

AN EARNEST EFFORT

The following prayer is reported to have gone forth from the pulpit of a negro preacher in Mississippi: "Oh, Lawd, give thy servant this morning the eyes of the eagle and the wisdom of the owl, connect his soul with the gospel telephone in the central skies, luminate his brow with the sun of Heaven, pizen his mind with love for de people, turpentine his imagination, grease his lips with possum oil, loosen his tongue with the sledge hammer of thy power, 'electrify his brain wid de lightning' of de word, put 'petual motion in his ahms, fill him plumb full ob de dynamite ob de glory, 'noint him all over wid de kerosene ob dy salvation and sot him on fire. Amen."

SLIGHT FAVOR REQUESTED

An eastern college graduate appeared for work at a Michigan lumber camp and was assigned to one end of a cross cut saw, the other end being in charge of an old experienced lumberman. At the end of an hour the veteran stopped fawing and regarded his weary partner with pitying eyes.

"Sonny," he said, "I don't mind your riding on this saw, but if it's just the same to you, I wish you'd quit scraping your feet on the ground."

The new girl at the perfumery counter had received her training at a book store. She hadn't been long on her job when a customer, after looking over the display, picked up a bottle and asked, "Is this a good brand of perfume?"

"That, madam, is one of our six best smellers," declared the new salesgirl.

$3,800 INVESTED IN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

"In view of the recent disclosures in connection with the losses by the people of Kentucky in wildcat and worthless stock ventures," stated Postmaster Turder today, "it is gratifying to note that many persons of this community have placed their savings with the strongest institution in the world, namely, the United States government."

During the month of February the Mt. Sterling postoffice issued $3,800 of treasury saving certificates, which in five years will be worth $4,800, according to Postmaster Turner.

"The 1922 issue of treasury savings certificates seems to be more popular than any of the previous ones, due undoubtedly to the fact that they bear a higher rate of interest, namely, four and one-half per cent. compounded semi-annually and are free from all local and state taxes," Postmaster Turner said.

These certificates are on sale at all times at the postoffice in denominations of $1,000, $100 and $25, and any individual or corporation can own up to $5,000 worth.

LENA'S BABY

By MARY J. HITCHCOCK.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Angela put the pan of biscuits down on the table and looked out of the pantry window. At the foot of the lane Amos was talking with the rural delivery man. Angela's sigh became a sob. How much of her present unhappiness would be gossip tomorrow? A tear splashed onto the bread board—another and another. Angela put her head down on the table and cried.

Summer heat, the time when romance calls to the blood; blood heat, the period when desire sings through one's veins—Angela had known each, and now it was zero!

"It wouldn't be so hard if I had someone else to love—a baby, now—" But the thought was fresh torture to Angela's bruised heart. Hadn't she hoped from the first that there would be children at Meadowbrook? Hopes had become prayers and heaven had been deaf! That was the added bitterness to her present grief. If Amos left her for that other woman there would be nothing but the long, lonely years! Angela knew. She had matured early, faded soon, and she had none of Lina's plump prettiness in her own lean, lank shapelessness.

And Lina Summers, who had laughed at the love of two men, was claiming Amos for her own.

"What you going to do about it, now that you know about us?" Amos had demanded. "There ain't no use our trying to go on same as if you'd never found it out. You'll have to say—"

But Angela had said nothing. Not then, nor through the long night which she had spent in the spare room. In the morning she had come to the homely tasks of every day.

And out in the lane Amos was turning toward the house—walking quickly, as he was apt to do when excited or troubled.

"Lina ain't expected to live the day out," he cried, standing white and anxious eyed in the doorway. "She went to a dance at the Corners last night and her husband was there. They say he tried to make her go home with him, but she jumped into an auto and tried to run it herself. I've got to go—"

It was dark when the sound of wheels roused Angela to activity again. All day she had seemed dead, yet conscious of the underlying throb of heart-ache—misery that had tortured and drained her of her strength. But she asked no questions as Amos stumbled across the lamp-light and called to her. "I've come over after you; I'm going right back—"

"Me! You came for me!"

"I'm banking on you standing by her. Just because she's a woman, too. Maybe she won't let till we get there, but I told her husband you'd come—"

"Her husband. Is he—?"

"Been there all day—and all worked up, now she's going so fast!"

"I'm sorry for all of you," Angela found courage, and voice in the same minute. "She's done all she can to any of us, but I can't forget—"

"Last night?" Amos interrupted. "I know—I said things—but I thought, seeing as there's a baby—"

"Baby!" Angela grew tense.

"Didn't you know? She ran away from her husband because she didn't want to be tied down to children. He was trying to make her go home with him on account of the other little girl he didn't know how to take care of himself. Seems like she didn't run away soon enough, though, and—"

But Angela was no longer listening. In a minute she was slipping into her coat, pulling on her hat.

"Hurry!" she commanded, and again as they walked through the door-yard to the waiting wagon—"Hurry!"

In the upper chamber where Lina was breathing out her life two men and a woman watched her labored gasping. Angela moved close to the tiny nub of humanity that had slipped in as Lina was called out. Amos opened the door as the doctor returned from below stairs.

The woman on the bed opened heavy lidded eyes.

"I've made a lot of trouble—for all of you—" Her gaze left the others, fastened itself on the husband who leaned over her. "I'm sorry!" With an effort she turned her head toward Angela. "If I had been like you. You're a born mother. Could you—?" The dim eyes finished the question.

"I've been promising God I'd be a good mother—if—oh, I want to be!" Angela cried.

"Queer, you ain't never said a word to me about it since Lina died," Amos said to Angela one day. "But I want you to know—I wasn't as ready to leave you as you thought. She wasn't the kind to please me for long. I don't know what got into me—"

"It had to happen," Angela was humming at the sewing machine where she was making up tiny dresses for Lina's child. "I'd been praying for years for children I wasn't never meant to get. Maybe there wasn't no other way of making it come true!"

"Making what come true?" Amos asked.

"The power and the glory," Angela answered, and would say nothing more.

HONEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

We all seem to agree that New Year's resolution are good for the soul, so why should we stop at New Year's? What's the matter with a few spring resolutions, for instance, I do hereby promise myself that from this time on I won't insist on having my own way, because if I get it the world is likely to be upside down in ten minutes. What I propose to do is to find out which of the bunch of us humans has the best way and then root for that. It's better to accept, the best than to force the worst just for the sake of winning, because when you win you lose, and that's a poor kind of game to play.

CONSPICUOUS BY H/S ABSENCE

A farmer wrote as follows to a well-known agricultural expert, to whom he felt grateful for introducing a variety of hogs:

"Dear Sir: I went yesterday to the county fair. I had several pigs of your species, there was a great variety of hogs and I was surprised at not seeing you there."

INJUSTICE TO IRELAND

"There's a difference in time between this country and Europe," the teacher explained to Patrick, who was attending night school. "For example, your friends in Dublin are now in bed, while we have the evening before us."

"It's always that way," cried Pat. "Ireland niver got justice yit."

HOLDING HIS OWN

A tramp, sitting on the porch of a country store, remarked proudly, "I began life with nothing, and I've been holding my own ever since."

What the best and wisest parent wants for his own child, that must be the community want for all children. Any other ideal for our schools is narrow and unlovely; acted upon, it destroys our democracy. —John Dewey.

Any man who cannot save money is bound to be dependent on relatives or charity when he attains old age and is unable longer to earn a salary for himself.

An opera singer says that no woman is worth loving until she is 30. Maybe not, but how is one to tell when she is 30?

In the second month the peach tree blooms. But not till the ninth the chrysanthemums. So each must wait till his own time comes.

ATTENTION, FARMERS!

Every farmer should have printed stationery; it gives him more of a business appearance to the outside world, and costs no more than ordinary tablets and envelopes—the only difference being that you have to buy in a little larger quantity. Farmers throughout the entire United States are rapidly acknowledging the fact that they ARE real business men; in fact, they are the most important business men in this country, and their business is certainly one that should be advertised to the outside world, and for this reason farmers generally are using neatly printed stationery, the same as other business men of less importance. Realizing this fact, and in order to encourage the practice of this business—like move, we will for the next thirty days make special prices to farmers only on printed stationery.—Advocate Publishing Co., "The Home of High Class Printing." Do Modern Hotels Pay?

Some Honest Doubters say: "Do Modern Hotels pay?"

In answer to this comes one of the country's foremost hotel financialists, Mr. E. J. Hockenbury, President of the Hockenbury System, Incorporated, with this statement: "I challenge anyone to produce the name of a modern hotel in the United States or Canada which has been built within the last five years, and that has been in operation for one or more years, that has not been, financially, a paying investment."

Is Mt. Sterling so short sighted that she is going to believe that we are the one town in America where investing in a New and Modern Hotel could be the single exception?

Seven Reasons Why Our New Hotel Will Pay

Any keen business analyst and investor would be glad to be offered an investment embodying seven sound fundamental sources of income, whether it be a clothing store, a bank or a hotel. These seven sources of business for Mt. Sterling's new hotel are readily apparent, and that is but one of the reasons why the members of the executive committee of representative business, professional and farming men are backing this big community enterprise with their money and their energy. The benefits to the city itself are by-products which must be considered in addition.

Here are the seven sources:

First: The people of Mt. Sterling themselves will use the New Hotel as a civic and social center, a place where business and civic luncheons and other events will be held.

Second: Surrounding territory. Being the county seat, and the center for a very large trade section reaching into the mountain territory, Mt. Sterling is the logical place for these people to come to transact their business.

Third: Commercial Travelers. These men will stay in Mt. Sterling and work certain territories with this city as a center. More of them will also come to the city than are now coming.

Fourth: Buyers in increased numbers. Buyers of tobacco and cattle will visit our market when they are assured of good hotel accommodations.

Fifth: Motor Tourists. Large numbers of automobile tourists will stop or be drawn to this city when good hotel accommodations are available. (In the Automobile Blue Book we are now listed as a city to be avoided).

Sixth: Conventions. We cannot draw conventions now, but with a new hotel we can secure from twelve to fifteen conventions annually. This would draw from 2,500 to 5,000 delegates, bringing in a revenue annually to the people of Mt. Sterling a sum aggregating from $40,000 to $60,000.

Seventh: Former residents, many of whom would be glad to come back for short visits and vacations were there modern hotel facilities.

These seven sources combined with the revenue from the concessions and from many other minor sources give this community not a speculative, but a safe and attractive investment.
